M. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—Take the pleasure of writing you a small certificate concerning Vegetine prepared by you. I have been a sufferer with the Dyspepsia for over forty years, and have had the Chronic Diarrhœa for over six months, and have tried most everything, was given up to die, and did not expect to live from day to day, but no physician could touch my case. I saw your Vegetine recommended for Chronic Dyspepsia. I commenced using it, and continued doing so, and am now a well woman and restored to perfect health. All who are afraid with this terrible disease, I would kindly recommend to try it for the benefit of their health, and it is excellent as a blood purifier.

By Dr. T. S. FOLKINS, M. D., for

MRS. WM. H. FORBES.

VEGETINE.—When the blood becomes sluggish and stagnant, either from change of weather or of diet, want of exercise, or other causes, or from any other cause, the Vegetine will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors, clean s the stomach, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

TEMPTING PROVIDENCE.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

The more respectable Democratic newspapers are trying to persuade themselves and the public that the Potter investigation does not mean anything after all. According to some it is to be made solely in the interests of historic truth, with no idea that its results can have any present influence upon practical politics. According to others it is designed merely to expose the Democratic party as to ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, so that it may provide by appropriate legislation against a repetition of them. Fraud being a game which the Democrats do not understand, how can they be expected to guard against it unless the country gives them an opportunity to discover by the aid of an investigating committee the method of playing it? Neither of these explanations of the Potter resolution is entirely consistent with the conduct of the party during the progress of the debate. If the Democrats were curious to know whether the last Presidential election had been fairly conducted, why did they so stoutly refuse to inquire into the transactions in any of the States except Florida and Louisiana? If they wished to learn all about frauds so that they might be careful not to commit any, pray why did they decline to look at the extraordinary proceedings in Oregon?

But even if it were true that the instigators of this attack upon the President's title had no other purpose in view than the wholly insufficient one expressed in their speeches and resolutions, what guarantee can they give the country that the Democratic party will be equally cautious and moderate? They pack a partisan committee to find evidence in support of a charge to which they have committed themselves in advance, that Mr. Hayes holds his office by virtue of frauds perpetrated in Florida and Louisiana, and they tell us that when they have proved this accusation they mean to stop short and let the matter go no further. How do they know that their followers will let them stop? The Democratic revolutionists have been trying to upset the Government ever since it became plain that Mr. Hayes would be President. They refused to abide by the action of their own Electoral Commission. They tried to prevent the declaration of its verdict by parliamentary trick and anarchical violence. They repudiated its decision by a resolution of the House of Representative, which, after they had joined in creating it and promising to stand by it, was an act of outrageous bad faith. They have never forgiven Mr. Tilden because he was not such a fool as to attempt to seize the Presidency by force. Does any man in his senses imagine that they are now going to drop the whole matter as soon as they have embroiled all the scandals of the Louisiana and Florida canvass in a Public Document, which will be discussed for a little while in the newspapers and then forgotten? Not a bit of it. Secretary Sherman spoke the plain truth he other day when he said that this movement means war.

The attack upon the Army is a part of the same scheme of disorder. No doubt Banning and his tribe wish to disband our soldiers to please the Communists and incendiaries. But there are other Democrats in league with Banning who do not wish to please the Communists and incendiaries, and who know that we have pressing need not only of every man now in the ranks, but of many more. What is their object in demanding a "reorganization" which will turn out of the service at least twenty per cent. of the privates and over thirty per cent of the officers? They are perfectly well aware that, in the course of a year or so, public opinion will insist upon an increase of a force which is now altogether too small for the duty required of it, and will be preposterously inadequate if the proposed law is carried into effect. We have no doubt that the revolutionary Democracy hate the Army because they cannot use it in their projects of usurpation, and they propose to discharge 700 officers mainly that a different sort of men may be put in their places. They are tempting Providence. They are flourishing torches in a powder magazine, and yet they are highly indignant if we accuse them of preparing disaster.

SECRETARY SHERMAN'S LETTER.

THE ELECTION IN LOUISIANA AND MR. SHERMAN'S CONDUCT—WHAT HE CAN PROVE.

The following is the letter of Secretary Sherman to Clarkson N. Potter on the subject of the Potter resolution:

WASHINGTON, May 20, 1878.

The Hon. Clarkson N. Potter, Chairman, etc., etc.

SIR: I observe that the resolution of the House, under which your committee is organized, singles me out personally by name from among twenty or more gentlemen who were present at the request of President Grant or the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee to attend and witness the action of the Returning Board upon the Presidential election returns in the State of Louisiana in 1876, and in substance charges that at that election in East Feliciana Parish and in part in West Feliciana Parish in Louisiana the Republican vote was withheld and not cast, in pursuance and execution of a conspiracy by such voters; that in furtherance of such conspiracy James E. Anderson, Supervisor of Registration in East Feliciana, and D. A. Weber, Supervisor of Registration in West Feliciana, falsely protested that said election in such parishes had not been free and fair, and that thereupon the Returning Board of said State falsely and fraudulently excluded the votes of said precincts, and by means thereof and of other false and fraudulent action of said Returning Board, the choice of the people of the State was annulled and reversed; and that such action by the said Weber and Anderson was induced or encouraged by the assurances of the Hon. John Sherman, now Secretary of the Treasury. This resolution requires you to investigate these allegations, and upon the truth of these depends the accusation against me, viz:

First—That there was a conspiracy among the voters to withhold and not cast their votes, with a view to make a false charge as to the election.

Second—That in point of fact there was a free and fair election in East and West Feliciana, which was falsely protested and returned by said Anderson and Weber, by which the votes of these parishes were falsely and fraudulently excluded by the Returning Board.

Third—That the offence of Anderson and Weber was encouraged by assurances from me.

With the view, therefore, to meet this accusation, which, so far as it affects me, I declare and know to be absolutely destitute of even the shadow of truth, I respectfully ask, and now make formal application, for leave to be represented before your committee, by counsel, in the investigation of all charges affecting myself personally. I tender and offer to prove that in point of fact the election in East and West Feliciana Parishes was governed and controlled by force, violence and intimidation so revolting as to excite the common indignation of all who became conversant with it, and that proof was submitted to that effect—not only before the Returning Board, in evidence contained in Executive Document No. 2, Second Session XLIVth Congress, but also in the testimony taken by the Committee of the Senate on Privileges and Elections, Report No. 701, Second Session XLIVth Congress. I will, if allowed, furnish the names of witnesses whom I desire to examine before you to prove the truth of this statement as to said parishes, and that the protests referred to were true; supported by testimony and properly acted upon, and sustained by the Returning Board. To my personal conduct during this examination, I invite your fair and candid scrutiny, with entire confidence that not only myself, but my associates of both political parties, acted honestly and properly from a sense of public duty.

I have requested the Hon. Samuel Schellabarger to deliver this to you, and I respectfully designate him as the gentleman I would desire on my part to be present to cross-examine witnesses test fying in relation to charges against me, and who will, as my counsel, render evidence in proof of this statement. The favor of an early answer is requested.

Very respectfully,

JNO SHERMAN.

A NATION'S GRATITUDE.

[From the New York Herald]

The proposition to retire General Grant with a general's full pay is one which ought to have received not only the unanimous approval of Congress but the hearty indorsement of the entire nation. Indeed, it would be but a feeble expression of the gratitude due to the great soldier from the American people. The services rendered by Marlborough and Wellington to Great Britain, important as they were, shrink into insignificance beside those performed by Grant for the United States. The English commanders' military genius stood their country in good stead in war, but the victories they won were not essential to the preservation of the constitutional structure of the British government. The American soldier saved the Union and gave the nation greater strength and influence at home and abroad than it possessed before the terrible trial through which it triumphantly passed under his leadership. It has been said that republics are ungrateful, and perhaps it is fortunate that their ideas of gratitude do not extend far enough to saddle the country with gifts and pension lists that pass down to posterity and become a perpetual burden on future generations. But the proposition to bestow the full pay of a general for life on a soldier like Grant was one so just and moderate that no voice in Congress or out of Congress ought to have been raised against it. It was defeated by the Democratic Senators, and like many of their recent proceedings in Congress this action in the matter is calculated to deprive their party of the confidence of the country.

In their frantic effort to prevent being called upon to vote yes or no on the question of the legal validity of the President's title. There is no longer a doubt that the investigation is intended, and that the investigation is only an instrument to discover a pretext for it.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

This is to give notice that a petition has been presented to the Court, on the 22d day of May, 1878, by Stephen D. Amazeen, of Hampton, a Bankrupt, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts provable under the Bankrupt Act, and upon reading said petition.

It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same, on the first Monday of August, A. D. 1878, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that the second meeting of the creditors of said Bankrupt be held before Charles Hamlin, Esq., Register, on the 21st day of June, 1878, and that notice of the same on the 21st day of June, 1878, and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Aroostook Valley Sunrise, newspapers printed in said District, once a week for five successive weeks, and once in the weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Clerk of District Court, District of Maine.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

FORTY-FIFTH CONGRESS—Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 23.

The Senate at the expiration of the morning hour resumed consideration of the bill providing a permanent Government for the district of Columbia.

Mr. Davis of W. Va., called up the resolution authorizing the select committee to investigate the finance reports, books etc., of the Treasury Department, to continue the investigation and sit during the recess of the Senate. The resolution was amended by striking out the words "and sit," it being understood the investigation would be continued so far as to allow the experts now examining the books of the Treasury Department to continue that work, and as amended the resolution was agreed to without further discussion.

Mr. Blaine from the Naval Committee reported favorably on the Senate bill to place Lieut.-Commander Green and Colley on the active list of the Navy, he now being on the retired list. Placed on the calendar.

The Senate went into Executive session and when the doors were re-opened, adjourned.

House.

Mr. Throckmorton's amendment to the Army Appropriation bill, increasing the force from 20,000 to 25,000, the present strength was adopted in a Committee of Weight 115 to 107.

Mr. Garfield called up the resolutions reported by him from the Committee on Rules amending the House rules. The first amendment is to rule 112 and provides that all bills coming to the House from the Senate appropriating money, land or property of the United States, shall have first discussion in the Committee of the Whole; and all the Senate amendments to the House bills not germane to the subject matter of the bills as originally passed by the House, shall have the first discussion in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Mills opposed the proposition as tending to defeat the will of the Majority of the House.

After a short discussion the whole matter was on motion of Mr. Conger laid on the table.

Mr. Robinson rising to a question of personal privilege stated that charges had been made against citizens of the Parishes of East and West Feliciana, which if true would compel him to resign in shame from his seat. He sent to the clerk's desk and had read that portion of Secretary Sherman's letter to Mr. Clarkson N. Potter in which he refers to the election in those parishes.

Mr. Buchanan of Ills., raised the point of order that nothing contained in that paragraph reflected on the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Robinson).

Mr. Hale stated that Secretary Sherman had been charged personally in the resolution appointing the Investing Committee and has simply denied his guilt, and affirmed his innocence.

The Speaker pro tem ruled that unless the gentleman from Louisiana could state that the letter reflected upon him he could not claim the floor on a question of personal privilege.

The chair could not, however, decide before having heard the gentleman whether he was connected in any way with the statements made in the letter.

Mr. Robertson then proceeded to make a general statement as to the election in East and West Feliciana, but was interrupted by the Speaker pro tem who reminded him that all that was remote from a question of personal privilege.

Mr. Barchard—Unless the gentleman connects himself with fraud.

Mr. Robertson—I don't connect myself with those frauds by denouncing them.

The House then at one o'clock went into Committee of the Whole on the Army Appropriation bill, Springer in the chair, the pending amendment being to fix the strength of the army at 25,000 instead of 20,000.

After Some Debate

a question recurred on Throckmorton's amendment increasing the strength of the army from 20,000, as provided in the bill, to 25,000, its present force, and it was agreed to, 115 to 107.

The following Democrats voted with the solid Republican vote in the affirmative: Quiller of N. J., Patterson of Col., Williams of Mich., Robertson of La., Wigginton of Cal., and all the Texas members, except Reagan, who voted in the negative.

Mr. Foster moved to strike out all the bill after the paragraph just disposed of and substitute a provision of three Major Generals to examine and report on the organization, the physical working and efficiency at the various branches of the line and staff of the army and to make suggestions to increase its usefulness and reduce the cost of the army.

Points of order were made against the amendment and after a long discussion the amendment was exceluded and the reading of the bill was proceeded with by clauses for amendment.

The item for the pay of the army was on motion of Hewitt increased from $3,290 000 to $9,000,000 to correspond with the increase of the force from 20,000 to 25,000 men. The item for subsistence was also increased in the same proportion. After disposing of twelve pages of the bill, the committee rose and the House took a recess.

Evening Session.

A bill to amend the the Pension Act of the 15th of June 1872, was passed, and the House then went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Springer in the chair, on the Army Appropriation bill resuming consideration at the second section which reduces the number of cavalry regiments to six, and infantry regiments to 25, and reduces the consolidation of regiments and companies for that purpose.

The Committee after striking out several sections and amending others came to the 8th and a motion to strike it out was voted on by Tellers.

The Tellers reported 91 in the affirmative, and when the negatives were to be called for only 33 Democrats voted, and the objection "no quorum" was raised.

The Chairman then directed the roll to be called when 291 members answered. The Tellers again took their places and this time reported a vote of 92 to 79 so that the 8th section was struck out.

Mr. Hewitt moved the Committe rise and the motion was resisted by the whole Republican force (as it resolved upon completing their victory,) but they were not backed by their Democratic allies and the motion was carried 96 to 83, and the Committee at 10 o'clock rose.

The Republicans, flushed with the triumph of the evening, seemed determined to keep the House in session and so they voted down, on a division, the motion to adjourn.

When the vote was taken by yeas and nays, all the Republicans voted and all answered in the negative and several Democrats also in a defiant humor voted no. Many Republicans, however, withheld their votes, so the result was yeas 87, nays 77, and the House at 10.30 adjourned.

THE WEATHER.

WAR DEPT., OFFICE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, Washington, D. C., May 24—1 A. M.

Indications.

For New England: Rising or stationary followed by falling barometer, variable winds shifting to East or South, warmer, partly cloudy weather, and followed during the afternoon or night by rain areas.

BURLINGTON VT., May 23. The Republican State Convention met and organized this morning with 553 delegates present. Ex-Governor J. Gregory Smith was chosen temporary chairman, and in the course of his remarks accused the Democrats at Washington of fomenting another rebellion by hamstringing with the President a title. Committees were appointed and the convention adjourned till 2 p. m.

Col. Redfield Nominated for Governor.

The Convention reassembled at two o'clock and Col. Readfield, Proctor of Rutland, was unanimously nominated by viva voce vote as candidate for Governor. E. P. Colton, was unanimously nominated for Lieutenant Governor on the second ballot; for State Treasurer, the present incumbent John A. Page was nominated by acclamation.

The Platform.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Vermont steadfastly adhering to the often declared principles of their party and sensible of the gravity of the present exigencies in our country hereby resolve,

First. That the motives and general course of the Administration of President Hayes have our hearty approbation and though differences as to policy may exist we express the belief that the Executive and the Republicans in Congress are disposed to suffer no division but on the contrary to observe the excellent precept in essentials unity, in non essentials liberty, in all things charity.

Second. That welcoming truth and shrinking not from investigation we yet confess as unfair, uncalled for and revolutionary, the measure of the Democratic House of Representatives to investigate a part only of the facts pertaining to the Presidential election and consider that all efforts to reopen a question of such magnitude after it has once been lawfully, and as we believe justly closed, are detrimental to the prosperity and prerogatives of the country and deserving the reprehension of all good citizens.

Third—That while we deplore the continued opposition of a portion of the Senate to the efforts of the administration to give equal rights and privileges to all the citizens of the whole country, we do recognize the patriotic action and devotion of those in that sect on who now stand firm for the Union and the perpetuity of good government.

Fourth—That we cordially recommend to the suffrages of the freemen of Vermont, the candidates this day nominated.

The resolutions were heartily applauded and on motion of Governor Page were accepted and adopted.

The State Committee were authorized to call District Conventions at the time of the State Convention to choose delegates to the National Convention.

E. P. Colton, candidate for Lieut.-Governor, briefly thanked the Convention, after which it adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Democratic Platform

HARRISBURG, PA., May 23. The following is the platform adopted by the Democratic State Convention:

The Democracy of Pennsylvania unanimously declare that the Republican party, its measures and men, are responsible for the financial distress, misery and want now existing. In had control of the Legislation of the country, and enacted and perpetuated a policy that has enriched the few and impoverished the many. Its system of finance has been one of favors to monopoed monopolists, of unequal taxation and exemption. Its laws are unjust and its practices immoral. They distress the people and destroy their substance. The only remedy for these evils is in an entire change of policy and dethronement of those in power, and we resolve.

That further contraction of the volume of the legal tender notes is unwise and unnecessary. They should be received for customs duties and reissued as fast as received. Gold silver and United States legal tender notes at par therewith are a just basis for paper circulation. A close connection of the Federal Government with the business interests of people through National banks tends to monopoly and centralization but in changing the system uniformity of notes, security of the note holder and protection of capital invested should be provided for. Treasury notes issued in exchange for bonds bearing a low rate of interest is the best form in which the credit of the Government can be given to paper currency.

Labor and capital have equal demands upon and equal responsibilities to law. Commerce and manufactures should be encouraged so that steady employment and fair wages may be yielded to labor whilst the safety of investment and moderate profits are due to capital. Violence or breaches of order in support of real or supposed rights of either should be promptly suppressed by the strong arm of the law.

Tolerance declares fraud should be exposed, truth vindicated and criminals punished, but opposes any attack upon the President's title as dangerous to our institutions and fruitless in its result.

He declares in favor of a high protective tariff and says the public lands are the common property of the people and should not be sold to speculators nor granted to corporations.

Our public debt should be held at home and bonds ought to be of small denominations in which the savings of the masses may be safely invested.

The Platform Adopted.

The Democratic State Convention elected Chas. R. Buckalew, President, the platform was read and unanimously adopted and the balloting for Governor began.

The Nominations

Andrew H. Dill, of Lewisburg, was nominated for Governor on the third ballot, and after the announcement of the Supreme Judgeship nomination several motions to adjourn were made and rejected, and the convention proceeded to a nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, John Ferlig of Titusville being chosen on the third ballot. J. Simpson Africa, of Huntington, was nominated on the first ballot for Secretary of Internal Affairs, and on motion of Senator Wallace Hon. R. Milton Speer, also of Huntington was unanimously named Chairman of the State Central Committee for the ensuing year. After addresses from Senators Dill and Wallace, and Mr. Buckalew, the convention adjourned sine die.

WASHINGTON.

Potter's Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 23. Potter received a telegram from Hancock stating it inconvenient for him to return to Washington before Saturday, and Potter says the investigating Committee will probably not meet till then.

The Canadian Fishery Commission.

A despatch from Brussels states that the Belgian government is about to forward a complaint to the Secretary of State of the United States, to the effect that, owing to an incomplete publication of despatches, Belgium's action as well as Delfosse's, the minister at Washington, in regard to the Canadian fishery commission, has been placed in a wrong light. The American government is asked to make a correction by a complete publication of all the correspondence leading up to, during and after the sitting of the commission

Consul General Torbert's Reply to Charges.

NEW YORK, May 23. Consul General Torbet at Paris telegraphs under date of May 23d, as follows: I see in Washington despatches printed in New York files just arrived here, that charges have been made against the office of Consul General at this capital before a committee of Congress. The evidence upon which these charges are based, is falsely given. I made a full explanation to the State Department of the facts as they really exist, showing that I acted entirely in accordance with the law and custom, and that no ground exists for any complaints.

"It Is Stated" that the Treasury investigating committee have discovered proofs of scandalous tampering with the books of the bureau of engraving and printing, and that false reports have been made to Congress of the expenses of managing the bureau for the purpose of keeping the work of printing out of the hands of the bank note companies. A member of the committee said it would be shown that the rates of the bank note companies for printing the greenbacks and legal tender notes have for years been largely below the actual cost of doing the work in the bureau of engraving, although the reports of the bureau have been doctored to convince the public to the contrary.

The National Democratic Committee were to-night in session more than two hours. They discussed the political situation, declining to declare the present investigation by the House was not intended to impair the President's title, but adopted the following resolution which it was thought would be sufficiently explicit to show the object of the investigation:

Resolved, That the action of the House of Representatives in appointing a committee, fully empowered to investigate and report upon the frauds alleged to have been committed in the late Presidential election, to the end that the truth may be made known to the people and a repetition of such frauds be prevented in the future, meets the approval of this Committee.

The Committee did not take any action on the subject of an address to the people. A Committee was appointed consisting of five members to cooperate with the Congressional Committee in regard to the Congressional fall elections as follows: Senator Burnham Chairman, and Senator Ranson of North Carolina, Representative Reed of New Jersey, and John G. Thompson of Ohio. The National Democratic Committee adjourned sine die.

COLORADO.

A Terrific Rain and Flood.

DENVER, May 23. A terrific rain fell upon large areas of Douglass and El Paso counties Tuesday. It is believed that the storm was most violent along the spur of the Rocky Mountains, which separates the head waters of the Arkansas and Platte rivers. Cherry Creek which empties into the Platte at Denver, and which is ordinarily dry, was suddenly deluged—at one o'clock Wednesday morning, and in less than an hour the entire western portion of the city was flooded. Several bridges were swept away and a large amount of property was destroyed. Owing to the efficiency and industry of the fire department the entire population of the district was aroused and warned in time to escape and it is now believed that no lives were lost in the city beyond that of an unknown man whose body was found in a freight car where he probably had been asleep.

The flood involved several other streams on either side of the Divide. The Denver and Rio Grande railroad lost a bridge near Colorado Springs and is unable to run any trains on this end of the road. Three bridges were swept away on the Kansas & Pacific. A freight train on the latter containing 18 cars passed through the bridge across Kiowa, burying with it John A. Baker, engineer, Frank Sickle and John Platt, fireman, whose bodies were not recovered. The debris and drift from Cherry Creek lodged against the Colorado Central bridge across the Platte and forced out a portion of its supports. This road also sustained considerable damage on the Cheyenne division; but it is believed that its trains and those of the Denver and Rio Grande will run more regularly Thursday.

GILMORE'S BAND IN LONDON.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

Over 30,000 People Present.

NEW YORK, May 23. Over 30,000 people attended the concert in honor of the American band under Gilmore at Sydenham Crystal Palace yesterday. There were three hundred instrumentalists and three thousand vocalists on the seats of the Handel orchestra in the great transept. Gilmore's band formed a group of subdued color almost surrounded with by other bands in brilliant red, scarlet and dark blue uniforms of the Royal Artillery, Scots, Fusileer Guards, the Horse Guards and Royal Engineers, and further back in the vast semi-circle was the chorus.

The concert opened with a march, after which Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Hymn of Peace" was sung by three thousand voices. Gilmore then mounted the rostrum to lead his band, and received an exceedingly enthusiastic greeting. The great glass structure rang with huzzas and shouts of welcome. In response the band played "God Save the Queen."

All through the concert there was the same enthusiastic greeting when never Gilmore led his band. Encores were answered by American national airs which were generously applauded. The leading singers were Mr. Lloyd, Mme Paten, and Miss Lillian Norton, the latter of Boston. At the close usual the band, after playing the national anthem and "God bless the Prince of Wales," received an ovation. The concert developed a great expression of good feeling for America. Gilmore will give a series of farewell concerts in London and throughout the provinces on his return from Paris and before his departure for America.

Prospects of a Congress.

A MORE PEACEFUL ASPECT.

The Hope of Peace.

NEW YORK, May 23. Cable specials say it is authoritively stated in London that Gortschakoff brings from the Czar broader proposals couched in conciliatory terms that all questions pertaining to European Turkey be submitted to and treated by a European Congress, and all questions relating to Turkey in Asia be made the subject of a seperate convention between England and Russia alone. Constantinople advises are that a belief in the Congress assembling is increasing.

Osman Pasha on the Defense of Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 23. The Vakit and Basseret, newspapers, publish a letter from Osman Pasha denying that he said Constantinople was not susceptible of defense against any considerable Russian force and declaring that he never would be a party to the disgrace of retiring before an enemy much weakened by illness and fatigue.

The Russians at Erzerum.

A despatch from Trebizond states that the Russians at Erzerum have been reinforced with 10,000 men. Putrid fever is raging in the garrison in that place. The insurrection in Lazistah against the Russians is spreading. It is estimated that between 10,000 and 15,000 Lazis are under arms, prosecuting a guerilla warfare against the Russians about Batum and Batoum.

The London Times on the Situation.

LONDON, May 23. The Times' leading editorial says: It becomes every day a matter of more and more imperative necessity for Russia to obtain recognition by the other Powers, of some modified arrangement under which she will be relieved from what is practically a state of war. This can only be done by a full discussion of the San Stefano treaty in the European Congress. Russia already knows the simple condition on which alone England can enter such Congress. It may be a modified possibility, in form, but in substance it must be conceded.

Germany's Attitude.

The Vienna correspondent of the Telegraph says Count Andrassy and his colleagues have gradually come round to England's views about the terms on which Congress should meet as well as on many other points. Germany is disturbed. Prince Bismarck, whose influence here was open compliment now frequently tenders advice which is unheeded.

Another Bay of Pensac.

The Pera correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: The Embassies here are hopeful of peace. It is believed the party of conciliation is gaining supremacy in the councils of the Sultan also.

Russian Recruits.

The Pera correspondent of the Times says: The Russians continue to levy recruits throughout Thrace. The Greeks who are enrolled as Bulgarians are desperate at the ignoring of their nationality. The momentary excitement caused by Alli Suave's insane proceedings Monday, has disappeared and the apprehensions of a Russian coup de main have been soothed by arrangements now under negotiation for establishing a line of demarcation between the two camps.

The Congress Will Meet.

LONDON, May 23. The Standard discussing the Salisbury-Schouvaloff interview says it is in a position to state that the sanguine expectations entertained of the result of the interview have not been disappointed. The Congress will meet and it will be found that the elements of an agreement have been reached.

GERMANY.

The Anti-Socialist Bill.

BERLIN, May 23. The determination of the National Liberals advances. Liberals and Ultramontanes to oppose the Anti Socialist Bill nearly the form of that measure.

The Government Cabinet Changes.

LONDON, May 23. The Rome correspondent of the Times telegraphs that the Vatican in its negotiations with Germany having refused to recognized the Falk laws proposes instead to come to an agreement on the basis of the bull de salute animarum issued in 1821, to regulate the relations between the church and now Catholic German State. The Vatican, however, entertain little hopes that the proposal will be accepted.

CATARRH IS IT CURABLE?

HUNDREDS who have suffered from the various and complicated symptoms of Catarrh, and have tried many specifics and remedies without relief or cure, await the appearance of a remedy free from all anxiety. And I will say that for the disease that it can be positively and universally cured, and no destructive to health as Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Cough, and Serious and frequently fatal affections of the lungs follows, is a fact it cannot be denied by the neglected Catarrh. Other symptomatic afflictions, such as headache, impaired hearing, loss of smell, may be referred to as minor but no certain relief is made of neglected Catarrh. Let sufferers try the washes, but as nothing connected with the disease, the affections of the throat and lungs, they are useless.

IT CAN BE CURED.

It can be cured. There is no doubt about it. There is immediate relief afforded by Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh in but a slight evidence of what may follow a neglected cold in the head. A discharge of thickened matter that has lodged in the nasal passages, with offensive breath, are the results. Inflammation, soreness and tender to the touch, with a feeling of fullness in the head, are the initial symptoms of Catarrh, which, if not checked, will result in the destruction to health of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Cough, and Serious and frequently fatal affections of the lungs follows, is a fact it cannot be denied by the neglected Catarrh. Other symptomatic afflictions, such as headache, impaired hearing, loss of smell, may be referred to as minor but no certain relief is made of neglected Catarrh. Let sufferers try the washes, but as nothing connected with the disease, the affections of the throat and lungs, they are useless.

A COMPLICATED CASE.

Gent: again.—My case is briefly as follows: I suffered Catarrh for 20 years, and had Bronchitis for 5 years. For nine years I had one breakfast three months of the time I could not breathe through the nose, nothing so bad as to be obliged to take a meal, which I could not do for the stuffing of the nose and throat, and a constant dull pain in my head. My head was as full of matter as it could be without flowing. I was so nervous that I could not go to sleep for several hours in the night to sleep if I could, I would start up in the night with a choking sensation, and I was so nervous that I could not do my work. Every morning I spit up a quantity of matter, sometimes as much as a teacupful. I had no nasal obstruction, no cough, no difficulty in the throat, no headache, no pain in the back, as I have been for years. I could feel the effects of the Catarrh only upon my appetite, on my kidneys, and in a general prostration of my system. I was indeed gone up by my friends, who felt the effect of the Bronchitis. Very respectfully yours, C. H. LAWRENCE.
Proprietor, Oct 11.

Indorsed, by a Prominent Druggist.

I can say certainly that Mr. Lawrence purchased the Catarrh Cure of me, and from the testimony I have seen in relation to the cure, I believe it to be a very valuable remedy. A. H. DEAN.

Each package contains a Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use in all cases. Price, $1. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists throughout the United States and Canada, and by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

GEORGE.

Three o'clock on a December afternoon. The gas flared in the Waterloo station. Not that it was any darker at three than it had been at two, or any darker than at noon, for there had been a fog all day—heavy, impenetrable, yellow.

An express train was on the point of starting, and a young man stood at the door of the compartment in which he had already chosen his seat. He was waiting till the last moment, as young men will, for Shudery ghosts provoke and fro in the fog. A great-coated paterfamilias loomed through it, ogre-wise, gesticulating vehemently at his woman-kind, who fluttered like pale moths round the lighted gas. Guard's doors stood open, and shadows flitted in and out of ghostly carriages. Every now and then a phantom track rushed by and scattered other phantoms. Everywhere confusion, fog—when suddenly, within the radius of a flaring gaslight, opposite to which only young traveler was standing, behold a vision! A beautiful girl, her two eager hands outstretched toward him, her face bright with a look of recognition, raised to his.

"George! and I never even knew you were come home—never knew you had left Canada! You are going down to Craigthorpe, of course? What fine we will have! I suppose grandmamma meant it for a surprise. But, there! Let go my hands—we shall lose the train. Mamma will think I am lost in the fog."

The little hands fluttered like captive birds in his grasp, released thereupon, and the vision vanished. Onward the shadowy carriages engulphed it, for the doors were being shut now by a phantom form, which, as it drew near the flaring gas and came within its influence, took the lineaments of a human railway guard.

"Now, then, sir; time's up."

Our hero entered his compartment, the whistle sounded, the train steamed out of the station. It did so, for from much similar business it was comfortable after the manner of travelers in general, he left the crimson-lining stall unfolded on the empty seat opposite him, left the pages of Punch untouched, allowed the Saturday Review to be neglected at the bottom of the carriage where it had fallen, and sat upright, staring out into the yellow fog and pulling his mustache, until in his perplexity he exclaimed aloud:

"But who is George?"

For he was not George himself—that was certain.

In fact he was Philip—Philip Leigh, a young barrister, not altogether briefless; although a long and toilsome road, with many hills to climb, lay between him and fortune. About the said hills Philip had hitherto troubled himself little, such gentle activities as he had yet made having served, rather pleasantly than otherwise, to vary the dead level of his ordinary pursuit—a systematic chase after pleasure. But one brief court in decent obscurity than the law. No coquette herself, she never forgives trifling in her votaries, and was even now sensibly withdrawing from Philip the fostering smile with which she had hitherto encouraged him. He was just beginning to be aware that it was not possible to combine the merry, careless life he was leading with any hopes to might entertain of success in his profession. The object of his present journey was to pay a long deferred visit to the home of one of his greatest chums. It so happened this, intimacy was with "George himself" he was Philip's first expedition, into Middleshire. He had never met either Sir Luke or his wife. Still, Cragthorpe had been so often described to him that it fairly led him to imagine who "grandmamma" could be for there was no such person in his friend's family.

"Mistaken identity, of course," muttered Philip to himself. "How curious she was to see me—him I mean." And then the idea occurred that "George" might possibly be waiting to receive this belatedly fair lady at Cragthorpe. "I shouldn't mind if she mistook me for him again—plenty of opportunities in a country house—rather nice if she were not to know us apart."

Yet, on the whole, he felt he should prefer it, if George were discovered to be still in Canada, or gone to Wanaica—no matter where, only the further off the better.

On reaching the station at which he was to alight, Philip looked out for his fellow travellers, but by that time it was dark, and while he was finding his portmanteau, a footman had handed the ladies into the family coach. Looking in the glass afterwards he saw the family hearse—and the tall chestnut horses had shaded off with it into the Middleshire lanes. Philip followed in a fly. He speculated upon his chances of overtaking and pass the hearse, chief arriving with it simultaneously at the joint place of designation; but while he speculated fate decided against either alternative. With a sudden lurch the vehicle he occupied subsided into the mud; and, owing to the delay necessary for the repair of damages, by the time he arrived at Cragthorpe all outside the house was dark and silent.

Philip found Lady Thorpe in a small retiroom. She was in consultation with her housekeeper, and probably owing to the delay occasioned by the breakdown, she had to have forgotten that another guest was expected. Turning hastily as he was shown in, she, too, exclaimed as Letty had done—

"George!" Correcting herself immediately, however. "What nonsense! Mr. Leigh, of course—but really the likeness is very striking. You have been mistaken for Captain Bolland once before to-day, I believe. We are delighted you have found your way to Cragthorpe at last. I hope you don't need to be told how welcome any friend of Archie's is to Archie's mother."

"I suppose," Captain Bolland—then, thought Philip, impressing upon him the malignant to ask, "and who is grandmamma?"

"I won't make a stranger of you," continued Lady Thorpe, "if you yourself the trouble to go through that door; you will find Archie in the library and he will present you to Sir Luke."

Philip went through the door indicated, stumbled over some stepping-stones which rolled away at grief accordant yells, and a tall, spare lady rushed across and fell on her knees before him.

"My boy! My darling angel! My sweet little dear!"

Looking down at her, amazed, Philip was relieved to find that it was not himself but the smarting laptop he had trodden on which was the addressed. The large library was full of people. Philip's first indistinct impression was that it was full of tea. There were women in bonnets sitting here and there with tea cups everywhere. Archie came forward to welcome his friend and introduce him to his father.

Sir Luke stood on the hearth rug talking politics with a bald-headed old gentleman. "Glad to see you, Mr. Leigh. Better late than never. Hope you'll make yourself at home. Eh! what! Fly broke down coming from the station? Now I've warned that fellow Johnson twenty times that I'd withdraw my custom if he persisted in keeping such rattletraps of——"

"But, Sir Luke," put in he of the bald head, "Mr. Hammond——"

"Don't tell me!" exclaimed Sir Luke, wheeling round upon him, and they went hard at it again.

Upon his position near the fire Philip reconnoitered the whole room. There was not a face that did not undergo a rigid scrutiny from the demure eyes so well under control that they appeared merely to bestow a passing glance upon the assembled company. But the object of his search most certainly was not present, and he inferred an appeal to Archie until he should be alone with him. The opportunity came at dressing time, when young Thorpe was himself Philip's guide to the apartments assigned to him.

"I must have been little Lettie Fairfax," said Archie. "She and her mother arrived an hour before you did. I can't say I ever noticed the likeness myself, but it is no bad compliment, I assure you, old fellow, to be taken for George Bolland."

"Who is he?" he added in a tone Miss Fairfax seemed tolerably intimate with him.

"He is a native of these parts, a Muddyshire man, so, for that matter, is Lettie—or a Muddyshire woman, you know, it's all the same. George was a distant far-way nephew of Lettie's father, and it so happened that all the estates went to him when Mr. Fairfax died without issue. George and Miss Fairfax were a great deal together—brother and sisters after a fashion. But he's been in Canada these two years now."

"And Grandmamma?" asked Philip.

"Oh, that's how we come to see so much of them. Old Mrs. Middleton is a very old friend of my mother's family and a good deal here, off and on; and, of course, we have the others to meet here."

"She doesn't live with her daughter, then?" Philip found Archie somewhat vague in his explanations.

"What daughter? Never had one. Had no child but this girl's father. She was twice married you know; he's from old Middleton she got all her money; but he died in the year one, before her boy had left school. Oh, I see now! I's Mrs. Fairfax you mean. She is only Letty's stepmother, and a fine life grandmamma has always led with regard to anything that in any way concerns Lotty."

Pato sent Philip to dinner with Miss Maniers, the lady of the house. Miss Fairfax occupied the seat on the other side of him, and her daughter was opposite. Miss Lettice flushed rosy red, when she first met his eye, and her mother laughing he spoke:

"My dear, she tells me she mistook you this afternoon for a very old friend, Mr. Leigh. She must have taken you rather by surprise."

"It was the fog," said Lett, leaning across the table and speaking very distinctly. "You are not in the least like George. I ought rather have I made so absurd a mistake. It was the fog and the gas and the confusion altogether."

Philip ventured to remark that Lady Thorpe also had been struck by his resemblance to Captain Bolland.

"Then it was because I had put it into her head, she must have been thinking of him," said Letty, quickly; and, immediately reconstructed her undivided attention to a straw-colored mustache that had taken her in to dinner.

Such portion of Philip's attention as he could conscientiously divert Miss Maniers who was honored by her neighbor's adoration. He and Mrs. Fairfax were mutually pleased with each other. Toward the end of dinner, a harsh voice, which he had from time to time heard, proceeding from his side of the table, was silenced by the general hum of conversation to address Letty.

"Hadyou bring the silk, child? Forgot it, of course, of course."

"No, indeed, grandmamma. I did not forget it; and I never made such a bargain before——"

"Bargain! then it will be simply worthless. I beg you will no even show it me. Why on earth could you not go to a decent shop and pay it decent price? Have you never been taught that cheap things are dearest in the end?" and the speaker leaned forward to cast a reproving glance at Letty's step-mother, by which means Philip caught sight of "grandmamma."

Mrs. Middleton was bee-eyed, withered, worldly-looking, old woman. Philip's spirits sank at the sight of her. He fancied himself in the presence of his evil genius.

Next morning the guests at Cragthorpe awoke to a white world. Middleshire had been better than its name. To the frost of the last few days was now added a heavy fall of snow, which improved the beauty of the wintry landscape. Every one went to the lake, either to skate or to look on. Philip found it very delightful to be the guide of Miss Fairfax upon the ice, and to be coddled by her.

"How do you take my hands at the Waterloo station?" she said. "—suppose you know who you were? You couldn't have mistaken yourself for George Bolland. Why did you do it Mr. Leigh?"

[To be concluded.]
